

MUSIC

By Nick Rose, Contributing Writer

Latin music is fun. It fills a void, to be honest. Sometimes the beat is so intoxicating that you can do nothing but move. The Philadelphia-based Latin-American rock/percussive outfit deSol provides the perfect crash course in moving that ass, Latin-style.

deSol's music is bright and vibrant, much like the Spanish culture. Each sound, whether it's a simple guitar line, an intricate bass part or a percussive twist of musical lime juice, creates some tasty sonic concoctions. One of the most interesting parts of deSol is the band's diversity: All deSol's songs are Latin-influenced, but each pushes its own boundaries (for instance, the beautiful pop song White Dove). If you're into dancing and having a good time, deSol is your jam.
